Figured this when local cuck news today said there could possibly be a massive protest in DC on the 6th. They check flight and hotel bookings. It's going to be wild. And historic.

Trump is the only man on planet earth with the power to seize a city with armed patriots with a single tweet.

It's been said hundreds of thousands of times or more in the past 5 years on these threads... "This Timeline... what a time to be alive..."

It will be historic, and definitely wild. We are all very lucky to be on this side, at this time.

Seeing it in that light should be used as powerful motivation, perhaps knowing it's practically a live or die moment for our country is the biggest motivator. It's not about showing up because any one man asked us to, it's about showing up to protect the ideal that backs our beautiful country.

More than pedes on the planes.

The airlines have too little passenger traffic at the moment; January is a very low time of the year so they are on a reduced schedule anyway, say compared to the peak in Summer and without the flu factor.

Cancellations could happen, but then the airline usually has to arrange other transportation on other airlines.

To cancel because of this is to just cut off their nose or other organ to spite their shareholders.

permalink parent save report block reply

▲ 9 ▼

– Feddny 9 points 3 days ago +10 / -1

I'm not saying the airlines will do it, I'm saying government will claim there are terrorist threats or so bullshit to close airports or stop flights.

Might still be Amtrak - but the best times from my particular area are now sold out and the rest are marked up.

Were super cheap just after Trump sent up the Bat Signal and i booked. Bet my specific train is almost all based folks. Which would mean several hundred of us all going to the same place at the exact same time (several thousand if considering trains from other locations probably comming into DC within +-15 minutes).

Fly to Dulles (IAD), VA. It's a much bigger airport and straight down the toll road into DC. Reagan (DCA) is small in comparison with fewer daily flights.

DC Travel Requirements The District Government issued updated travel requirements, effective Monday, Nov. 9, 2020, for anyone traveling into Washington, DC from a jurisdiction with more than 10 COVID-19 cases per 100,000 people:

Get a test within 72 hours of traveling, and if the test is positive, don't travel. If you are a close contact of a confirmed positive case, don't travel. If you are a visitor to DC for more than three days, get tested within 3-5 days of arrival. Adhere to the mandatory mask policy, exceptions include vigorous exercise or while actively eating or drinking. <https://washington.org/dc-information/coronavirus-travel-update-washington-dc>

There are 0 flights from the 3 major airlines + Southwest and JetBlue to DC on January 5th.

Made me interested in checking for myself, just looked at about 6-8 major city airports and identified ~ 70 one-way flights to surrounding DC airports from just those cities. Those 70ish flights are listed as "1 ticket left", not even including all flights that are sold out. There will be a massive, massive amount of people in DC the 6th.

Literally every single flight to DC from any big city on January 5th is sold out.

There isn't a single delta, american, united, southwest or jetblue flight available on that date.

Every flight from New Orleans is booked as well. You can only multiple route flights that take 10+ hours. Oh and it's nearly $1,000

Every flight from every major city in the United States (including some of the most inhospitable liberal shitholes) are ALL SOLD OUT.

This is unbelievable

If your borders weren't closed I would considere it.

This is world history right here.

Options can be to fly to Pittsburg PA (for example) and rent a car to get you closer to DC. But you'd want to leave like on Monday, so have a plane ticket. Tickets are available to these outlying cities.

Holy shit guys. Search on Expedia for flights Jan 5-7 from any airport. Almost all say 1 left, which I believe means they're sold out

Sold out or fake sold out and actually canceled to prevent patriots from getting to DC

I'm driving down from NYC on Tuesday morning and staying at a hotel in Virginia. Will take the Metro to Federal Triangle 5am on Wednesday.

Originally planning to drive down early Wednesday morning but taking no chances so leaving a day early to be there.

Holy shit!! The 'peasant comments' here range from entertaining to ridiculous. I've flown a lot lately. The airline won't discriminate because you're going to this rally. They need the business to survive. All they care about is that you wear that fucking mask. Also there ARE NO COVID TEST REQUIRED upon arrival in DC. Yikes people. Do some smart research, it's out there. Stop listening to fucking TWATTER!!
